

Dreams Coming True is Theme of County's 369th Barn Quilt

Taylor Przybylski, daughter of Gary and Diane Przybylski, has had a passion for horses since she started riding at the age of two. At seven, her parents bought her her first horse that she named Joker. When Gary and Diane purchased their dairy farm near Krakow, they decided it was time to start bringing some of their horses home from their boarding stable near Bonduel.

Some of Taylor's horses have been home since 2016, but in the fall of 2020, Taylor built her very own horse barn complete with an indoor arena, close to her parents' dairy barn. And so, with the help and support of her boyfriend, Riley Caron, Greener Pastures Farm was born. And with that birth, Taylor decided it was time for her new horse barn and her parents' dairy barn, to have barn quilts displayed on them.

Taylor's barn quilt, named Dreams Do Come True, which is Shawano County's 369th, is displayed on her horse barn at W534 Townline Road near Krakow. It is painted in colors that match those of the horse barn, with her logo in the center, which was designed by her sister, Lindsey. "The horse in the center captures the spirit of my first and most beloved horse, Joker, with its beautiful, flowing mane," Taylor said. The interlocking square pattern is Taylor's favorite quilt pattern and represents Taylor and Riley working together.

Now, with all their horses, Tango, Apollo, Ryder, miniature Stanley and miniature donkey Theo, at home, Taylor and Riley enjoy riding and spending time with their little herd. The farm has also grown into a small business, offering horse boarding along with riding lessons. Overall, it has become a labor of love that both Taylor and Riley are very proud of.

Taylor's barn quilt was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by LeRoy Raddant and his grandson, Keenan, both of whom work for Raddant Electric in Shawano.
